Imagine you are a simple villager in Salem, MA, you are the best Puritan you can possibly be and you strive to be the best smith in town. One day while manning your forge the town magistrate come to you and places you under arrest for witchcraft. As you are sitting in prison awaiting trial, journal your thoughts and feelings about your current situation. (make sure to answer the following questions)

How did I get here? How could this happen to me?
What could I have done? Why is this happening? How is this fair to me or anyone of Salem? Is this truly justice?
